V- Un poème de John Keats : Trust

For you to trust me and me to trust you, you have to accept me and I have to accept you the way I am and the way you are, fully seen and deeply known, with no need of apology – with my body imperfections and with yours, with my character shortcomings and yours, too....

for you are a sacred gift to me and I am a sacred gift to you, and gifts are to be gratefully accepted and heartily enjoyed, but only if you trust me and I trust you, can we let ourselves be ourselves and forget real or unreal barriers, conventions or inhibitions, as to profoundly enjoy

what we've been granted:
you – the gift of me,
me – the gift of you,
as deeply as our inner worlds can take us in,
with trust
and joy.
